About LF Energy Summit

10-11 September 2025 | Aachen, Germany

The energy transition is a digital transformation, with industry stakeholders increasingly adopting modern technology best practices of collaboration on open source technology. Strategic adoption and contribution to open source accelerates this digital energy transition, resulting in more affordable, reliable, and cleaner energy for consumers, and new business opportunities to innovate and compete for vendors. This event will convene utilities, technology vendors, energy companies, policymakers, researchers, and energy end-users to showcase recent developments and the direction of open source in the energy transition; provide practical knowledge and guidance on best practices, tools and technologies; explore how to scale an open source community; and provide unparalleled opportunities to network with the executives and individuals driving innovation.
